

Re: Republishing query

1 message

Hi Nabaz

Thank you for your query regarding access to FT journalism for non-commercial research.

We are currently reviewing our policy regarding non-commercial research and given the number of requests that we receive, we cannot keep up with the legal and administration resource to reach agreement with the relevant academic body. We are not granting access to students or faculty for datamining in the interim.

I recommend you continue your research without FT content and wish you all the best in your studies.

Kind regards

Joseph Demillo

FT Syndication

+44 20

Reprints and permissions information

FT PROFESSIONAL

If you do not wish to receive promotional emails from the Financial Times about our products or services, please reply with the word "UNSUBSCRIBE."

On Mon, 19 Jan at 23:50, FT Customer Service <help@ft.com> wrote:

Hi Team,

I hope you're doing well.

I'm reaching out to request guidance regarding a customer enquiry on the academic use of Financial Times articles.

The customer is an MA student in Linguistics at the University of Raparin (Kurdistan Region of Iraq) and is currently working on a Master's thesis involving a corpus-based linguistic analysis of English economic news writing.

Specifically, the research focuses on the grammatical use of:

- definite articles (the),
- indefinite articles (a/an), and
- zero articles (Ø)

The analysis is purely linguistic and quantitative and does not engage with editorial viewpoints, reporting, or news content beyond grammatical patterns.

Proposed use of FT content:

- Collection of one FT economic article per day over approximately three months
- Articles accessed lawfully
- Texts stored securely and used only for private academic research
- No redistribution, sharing, or public access
- No full articles reproduced in the thesis
- Only brief illustrative examples or aggregated statistical results included, with proper citation
- Entirely non-commercial, solely for degree requirements

The customer is asking whether this limited academic use is permitted under FT usage policies, or if formal written permission is required.

Could you please advise on:

- Whether this use falls within acceptable academic/fair use guidelines, or
- If the customer needs to be directed to request formal permission (and via which process, if applicable)

Please let me know if you need any additional details from my side.

Kind regards,

Charles Oscar
Customer Care Associate
Financial Times Customer Care

Contact us: <https://help.ft.com/contact/>

thread::za1yAYNeegie3o_GYJ6gPS8::

This email was sent by a company owned by Financial Times Group Limited ("FT Group"), registered office at Bracken House, One Friday Street, London, EC4M 9BT. Registered in England and Wales with company number 879531. This e-mail may contain confidential information. If you are not the intended recipient, please notify the sender immediately, delete all copies and do not distribute it further. It could also contain personal views which are not necessarily those of the FT Group. We may monitor outgoing or incoming emails as permitted by law.