

Inter-Rater Reliability Coding Form

Dear Professor,

You are kindly invited to assist with the reliability checking of a noun-phrase annotation dataset prepared for an MA thesis entitled A Corpus-Based Analysis of the Occurrence of Articles in English Economic News. The study is conducted by Nabaz Muhammad Saeed under the supervision of Asst. Prof. Dr. Salih Ibrahim Ahmed.

Your expertise would be greatly appreciated in coding the reference type of selected noun phrases. Specifically, you are asked to assign one value for each of the following three dimensions: Definiteness, Specificity, and Genericity. The economic context sentences are taken from selected English economic news outlets: Bloomberg, CNBC, WSJ, Telegraph, Guardian, Reuters, NYT, AP, BBC, and CNN.

Your responses will be used solely for the purpose of calculating inter-rater agreement and improving the consistency of the coding framework. Your identity will not appear in the thesis or any publication. All responses will be treated as strictly confidential.

Please read the noun phrase, full phrase, article type, and context sentences carefully. If a case is uncertain, choose the best category according to the definitions below

☐ I confirm that I have read the instructions and agree to participate voluntarily. My responses will be used for academic research purposes only.

Coding Instructions and Definitions

Dimension	Choose One	Definition and Example
Definiteness	Definite / Non-definite	Definite means the referent is identifiable, unique, or contextually known to the reader/listener. Example: the Federal Reserve (a specific, known institution). Non-definite means the referent is not uniquely identifiable in context. This includes both indefinite NPs and zero-article NPs, depending on usage. Examples: a company (one unspecified entity); investors (no specific group identified); inflation (not tied to a unique instance).

Specificity	Specific / Non-specific	Specific means the NP refers to a particular identifiable entity, event, institution, indicator, or amount within the sentence. Example: a report released on Monday (a particular report). Non-specific means the NP refers to something hypothetical, predictive, abstract, evaluative, or general rather than a concrete instance. Examples: a possible recession (hypothetical); an economic outlook (general); inflation (used as a general concept).
Genericity	Generic / Non-generic	Generic means the NP refers to a class, kind, domain, or general economic concept rather than a specific instance. Examples: investors (as a class); markets (in general); prices ; inflation (as a concept). Non-generic means the NP refers to a specific situation, event, dataset, or context-bound referent. Example: the market reaction after the announcement (a particular event).
